Problem Statement:

First-party gaming developers often release an unfinished or uncreative game without caring about the consumer, as they know other people will buy it no matter what.

Details